

CORNERSTONE SOCIETY

On October 6, 1817, President James Monroe joined former presidents James Madison and Thomas Jefferson to lay the cornerstone of the University's first building, Pavilion VII. Over 190 years later, Jefferson's academical village still stands strong. Like that first support, the Cornerstone Society lays the groundwork for the future of the University.

Through planned giving, members of Darden's Cornerstone Society provide future support for Darden while meeting their own current financial and personal goals. Planned gifts may be revocable or irrevocable and include bequests through your will or living trust, retirement plan or life insurance policy beneficiary designations, charitable trusts, and charitable gift annuities. Many gift plans (also called deferred gifts) offer benefits such as significant tax savings and lifetime income.

Members of the Cornerstone Society will continue to shape the success of our School through the provisions that they have made for future generations. We are grateful for their generous support.
